

How the insurance world is adapting post pandemic to event organisers evolving risks

Martin Linfield, James Hallam

<https://www.linkedin.com/in/martin-linfield-b0225013/>

What insurance do you need going forward as your business gets back on it's feet, and with technology playing a more important part in many event businesses, what are the emerging risks to you and how can you protect yourself?

A simple language explanation of the evolving risks to your business and the risks from running events as we emerge from Covid and matching these risks up with insurance products that are available to protect organisers. We will cover protections if your event cannot take place, if you suffer a phishing attack, or if you are sued by a client for negligence.

Attendees will also receive an update of what is happening in the world of insurance and why they may be seeing rising prices and changes to some of their policies.

Attendees will go away with a better idea of the insurances and how they work to protect event organisers.